What is Google AI Mode?

When you go to Google there are now 2 main ways to search

1. The usual way. Type your search term into the search box
2. Or if you want an AI answer, click on AI mode

When someone searches the normal way

When someone searches the normal way – e.g. Life coaches in Galway, the results are

1. Local map results – 3 Google profiles (You need a Google profile and if yours is one of the 3 best Google might place you in the top 3)
2. Below these are the 10 organic page results (You need a web page that Google feels is very relevant, and your site needs good domain authority and needs to load quickly)

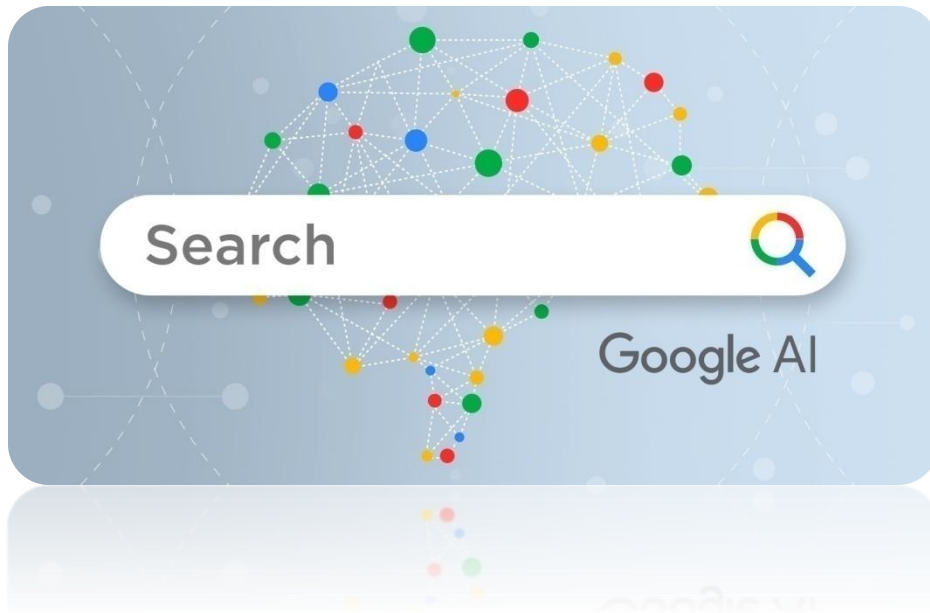

When someone searches using AI mode

When someone searches using AI mode – e.g. Life coaches in Galway, the results are

1. What Google Gemini is recommending. It isn't a list of links. It's the AI recommendation and why it is recommending
2. It will also list some reference web pages that you can visit for more information
3. The searcher can also ask a follow-up question e.g.. Which are the best for career advice?

Therefore, there are 2 ways to get found in Google AI Mode

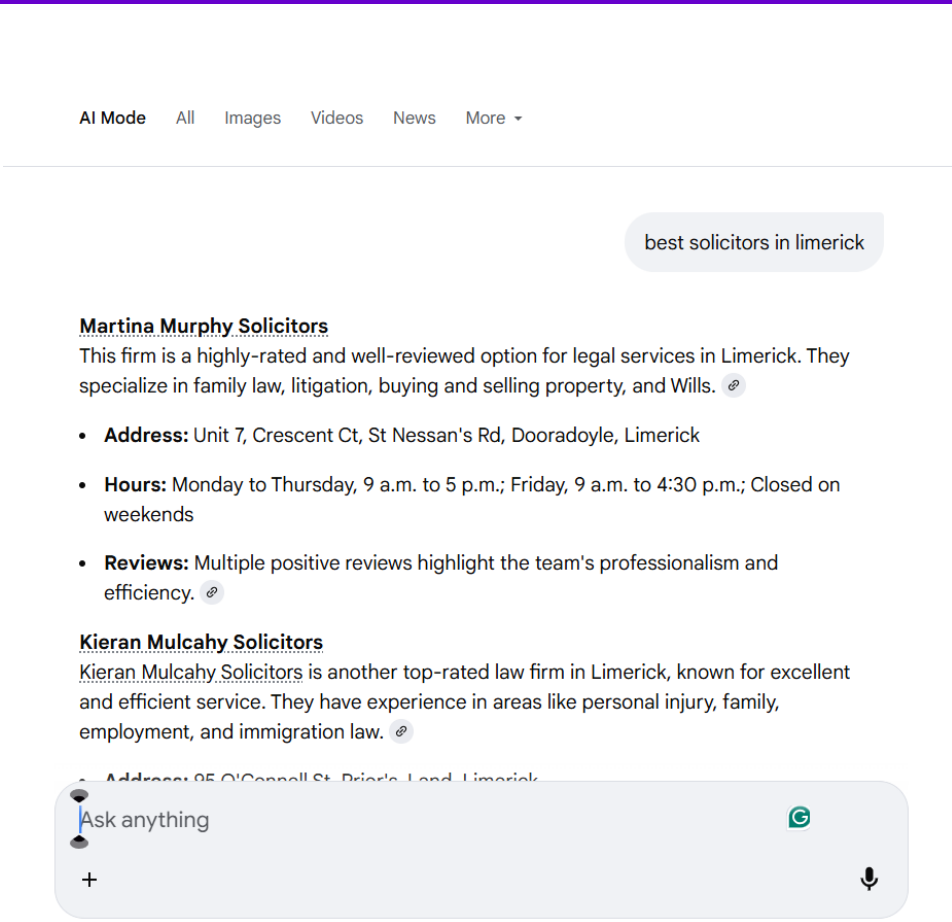

For small businesses, this means that the goal has changed. It's no longer just about

1. Getting your Google profile chosen as one of the top 3
2. Getting a relevant page from your website appearing high up in the list of 10 organic results.

There are now 2 extra ways in AI mode:

1. Getting recommended by AI mode
2. And / or getting cited by AI Mode

1. Getting recommended as a business in AI mode answers

1 Getting Recommended as a Business (The Suggestion)

This is the most valuable outcome — when Google’s AI names your business directly as part of its recommendation list.

These are often transactional or local searches like “best solicitors in Limerick” or “life coaches near Galway”.

To be recommended, you need to make it easy for Google’s AI to understand what you specialise in and Google needs to think that you are reputable

2. Getting included in AI mode answers as a reference link

These pages help in getting your business recommended by AI

(Plus AI could also reference your page)

These are transactional pages.

They exist to convert — to sell, not to answer broad questions. So they tend not to be referenced for searches like “Why or how”

- they are commercial rather than informational
- they rarely contain the kind of explanatory, educational content AI looks for when choosing references when people ask questions

However, these pages can strongly influence AI Recommendations, especially for transactional searches like:

“top wedding hotels in Limerick city”

“best dog groomers in Kerry”

“Recommend AI digital marketing trainers in Ireland”

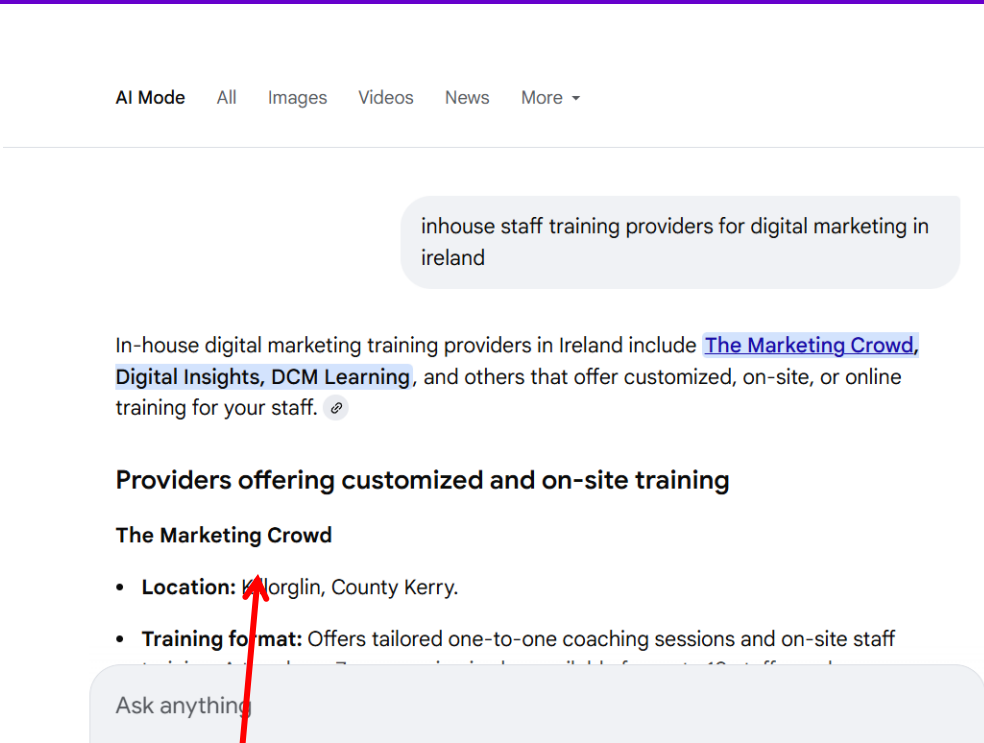

And for these transactional searches they could link to a Product / service page

1. Product / Service Pages

Below the search bar, the AI-generated text reads: "For wedding venues in Killarney, top-rated hotels include The Killarney Park for a luxury experience, the scenic Aghadoe Heights Hotel & Spa, the romantic Muckross Park Hotel & Spa, and the historic Great Southern Killarney." Below this text are four image thumbnails for "The Killarney Park", "Aghadoe Heights Hotel & Spa", "Muckross Park Hotel & Spa", and "Great Southern Killarney". To the right, a reference section lists three items: "Park Hotel", "Wedding Hotel Killarney", and "Wedding Brochure & Menu - Killarney Oaks Hotel". A red 'X' is drawn over the reference section. How to get Whatsapp enquiries from your website

I am often asked if there is an easy way to get people who visit your website to enquire using Whatsapp. Is there a simple whatsapp button that you could put on your site and when people tap on it they can then enquire about your product or service?

Here is a simple free way to do it on any website and it doesn't involve any plugins. You just need an image and then you add a link.

1. Get an image that prompts people to Tap here to Whatsapp. You could design your own on Canva or you can use one that I have created. See the one below.

2. Add the image to your web page

3. Click on the Insert link icon in your web page editor and insert this link

<https://wa.me/int code+yourmobilenumber>

So, if an Irish mobile number is 0873217775 you will stick 353 before it and drop the zero. Therefore the link would be

<https://wa.me/353873217775>

If you want to see an example of this working simply tap the image below and you can send me a quick message to my work phone

If you want to use this image on your website simply right click on the image and save it to your PC.

I think this would be very useful for your site if you are a driving instructor, Parenting coach, Yoga instructor etc and you want to turn interested web visitors into a quick enquiry.

These pages help in getting you included as a relevant source in AI

Blog posts are your primary opportunity to appear in AI Mode as a source when the AI is answering informational questions.

They answer the “how”, “what”, “why”, “who”, and “when” queries that users type into Google.

AI Mode Behaviour

When someone asks an informational question such as:

“What should a bride look for when choosing a wedding venue in Ireland?”

“How much does a solicitor cost in Ireland?”

Google’s AI scans blog posts that:

match the question exactly

provide clear, direct, answer-first explanations

are well structured and easy to interpret

These are the pages most likely to be used as citations in AI Mode, because they give factual, educational, or explanatory content the AI can rely on.

Ask anything

AI doesn't "guess." It recommends based on patterns of trust it finds across the web.

It looks for brands that are:

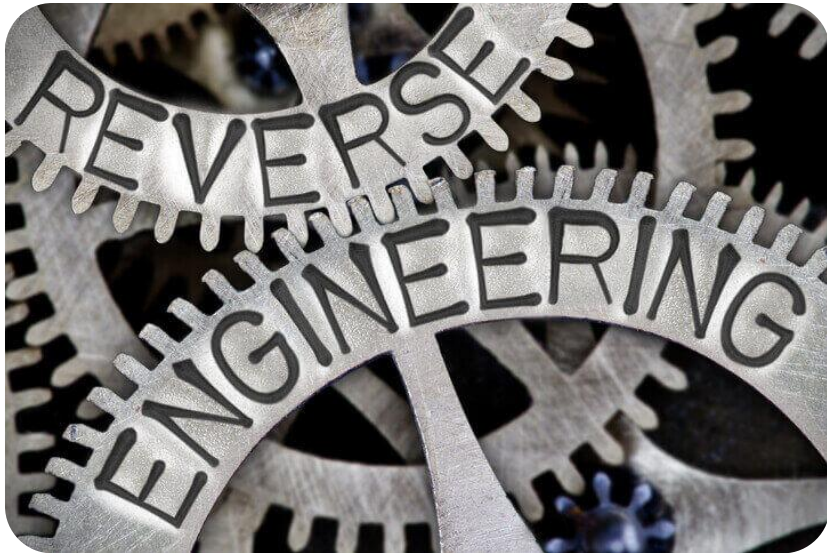

Well-known and well-reviewed across multiple platforms

Described consistently with the same services and expertise

Mentioned by others in credible articles or directories

Verified as being in that location

Action point 1: Reverse Engineer the AI

Ask the AI what it is putting weight on

When it recommends other businesses, follow up with: “Why did you choose these?”

You’ll often see clues like “highly rated,” “award-winning,” or “well-known locally.”

Use those clues to improve your About page and listings.

1. Ask Google’s AI Mode & ChatGPT & Perplexity “Who are the best [your profession] in [your area]?”
2. Ask: “Why did you recommend those? What criteria are you using and what are you placing weight on”
3. Identify which of these you have and which you need to work on / develop.
4. Update your About page, Google Business profile, and top content pages to reflect them.

Reverse Engineer the AI

why did you recommend these? what criteria are you using and what are you putting weight on?

I have recommended the specific trainers and institutions based on a set of criteria that prioritize a combination of local Irish presence, professional experience, global accreditation, and a proven track record of successful training delivery.

Here is a breakdown of the criteria used and the weight I put on each:

1. Proven Experience and Reputation (Highest Weight)

The primary criterion is the real-world experience and professional reputation of the trainers and institutions within the Irish market. I prioritized individuals who are recognized industry experts and who have a track record of delivering measurable results for businesses.

- Trainer Specifics: Individuals like Evan Mangan, Sandra Hennessy, and Keith Feighery were chosen because they have extensive experience (often 15+ years) and

Once you understand what the AI's are putting weight on you would then ensure you have a page on your site (about us or about the product / service) and list the relevant experience and expertise you have. This makes it easy for the AI to see it

Action point 2 :— Define a Clear Brand Positioning

What is the main thing you want to be known for?

AI links ideas it sees together repeatedly.

If you're clear and consistent about what you're known for, it starts associating your name with that topic.

Be specific — not generic.

Over 20,000 Irish companies have attended our practical & jargon free Digital Marketing training courses

Examples:

Restaurant (Killarney): “Best family-friendly restaurant using local Kerry ingredients.”

Hotel (Limerick): “Limerick’s most trusted wedding and events hotel.”

Life Coach (Galway): “Accredited coach specialising in career clarity and confidence.”

Everywhere you appear online — your website, Google Business profile and directories should repeat this exact positioning.

Here are 10 positioning statements that are designed specifically to signal clarity, specialisation, locality, and credibility — the four things AI search engines tend to prioritise when recommending service providers.

I'm writing these to match how AI engines evaluate:

- Is this coach clearly specialised?
- Is the niche repeated consistently?
- Is there a geographic anchor?
- Does it sound helpful, trustworthy, and specific?

All are written in a clean, simple style you can use across your website, Google Business Profile, LinkedIn, directories, and bios.

I am a life coach in Galway, Ireland. I want to develop a clear and consistent positioning statement that will be picked up by AI search engines. Act like an expert in AI search and brainstorm 10 positioning statements that you think an AI search engine would view favourably

Action point 3:— Encourage Consistent Reviews and Testimonials

AI analyses review sentiment to decide who to recommend. The quantity of reviews and the words that are used in the reviews both matter.

Focus on:

- Getting reviews on Google and social platforms
- Try to get customers to mention your key positioning messages. (e.g., “family-friendly,” “very useful training for my business training,” “stress-free weddings”) When asking for reviews you could say “for example, if you found the training very useful for your business just a few lines saying that would be brilliant”
- Responding publicly to reviews (shows activity and care)

Examples:

Restaurant: “Perfect for families — great kids’ menu!”

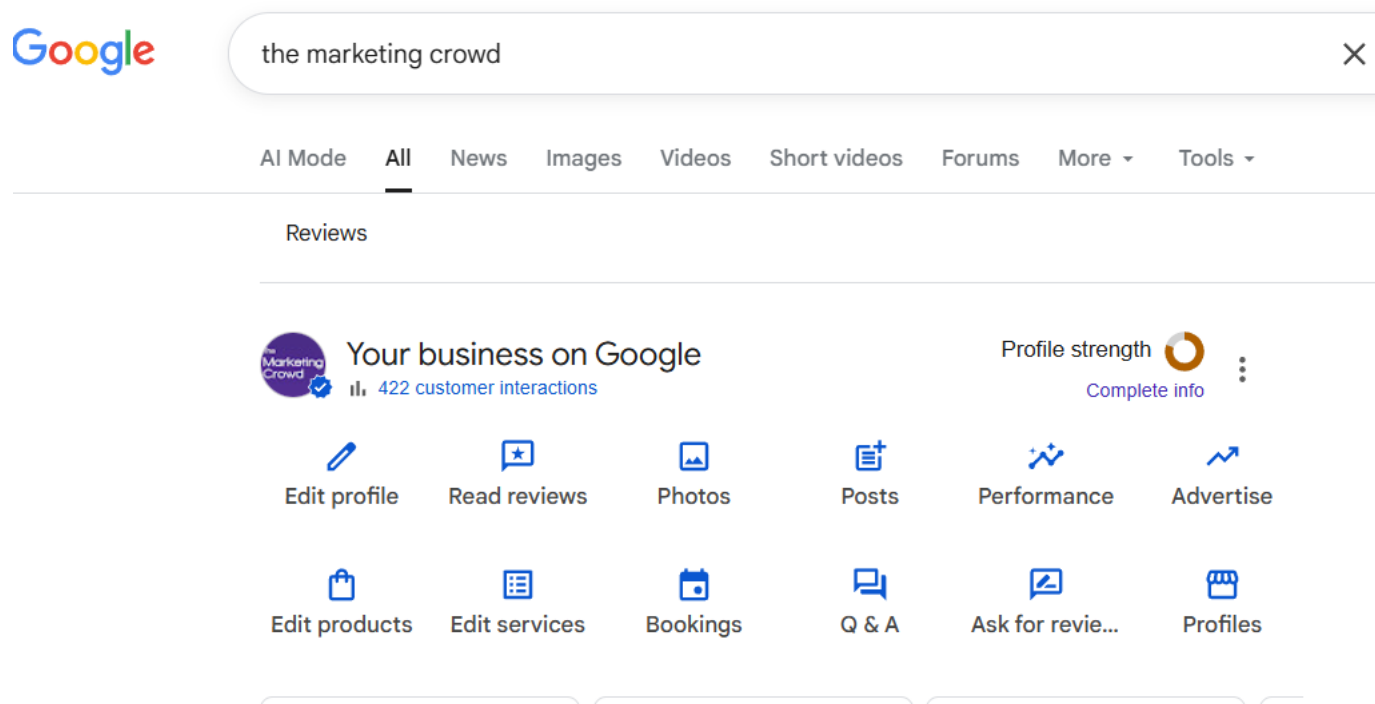

Estate Agent: “Made selling our Cork home stress-free.”

Hotel: “Our dream Limerick wedding venue.”

Life Coach: “Helped me gain confidence to change career.”

Wedding Planner: “She handled every detail — best planner in Wexford.”

Action point 3:— Encourage Consistent Reviews and Testimonials

1. Login to your Google business profile and get the link for your review section
2. Email customers the link asking for a review
3. Do the same for booking.com if you are in hospitality

Action point 4:– Be Consistent Everywhere (Your site & other platforms)

AI cross-checks your brand across the web. If your name, tagline, or tone changes between platforms, it gets confused and leaves you out.

Keep these consistent:

- Your business name and tagline
- Your expertise description
- Your author photo and bio details
- Your website, Google profile, LinkedIn, and social channels

Example:

If your About page says “Digital Marketing Trainer” but your LinkedIn says “Marketing Consultant,” it dilutes your positioning with the ai and it can confuse the 2

Action point 5:– Strengthen Your About Page (AI Reads It Closely)

Your About or About Me page is one of the most influential pages for AI recommendations.

That's where Google's AI checks for proof of experience, credentials, and authenticity.

Include:

- Clear headline – that reflects your brand positioning
- Credentials and years of experience
- Awards, partnerships, or accreditations
- Local details and service areas
- Links to press mentions or testimonials

Examples:

Restaurant: “Meet Our Chef – 20 Years of Kerry Cuisine”

Hotel: “Our Wedding Team – Over 120 Events in 2025”

Life Coach: “About Mary O Shea – ICF Certified Coach”

Wedding Planner: “Meet the Planner – Over 100 Wexford Weddings Planned”

The clearer your proof, the more confidently AI will recommend you.

Action point 6:— Try To Get Mentions Online (Digital PR)

Contact a local PR company and discuss how they can help you achieve this AI learns who to recommend by scanning mentions and citations — not just backlinks.

To encourage the AI to recognise you:

- Try to get featured on local or industry blogs (“Top 10...” or “Best of...” lists)
- Contribute quotes to journalists or roundups
- Collaborate with local directories and partners

Examples:

Restaurant: Aim to get listed on “Best Restaurants in Killarney” by Kerry tourism blogs.

Estate Agent: Contribute Cork market insights to the Irish Examiner or MyHome.ie.

Hotel: Aim to appear on “Top Wedding Hotels in Limerick” features.

Life Coach: Share expert advice with Lifestyle Ireland or Irish Times features.

Wedding Planner: Get named in OneFabDay’s “Top Wexford Wedding Planners.”

Even unlinked mentions train AI that you’re a credible local authority.
